NEW SCENES FROM THE OFFICE

MORE LOVE FROM IMAX FANS

Moviegoers returning to cinemas around the world continue to show their love for IMAX! Check out IMAX's Twitter, Instagram and Facebook to read more - in addition to this great piece on IMAX and "Tenet" behind-the-scenes in SyFy Wire.

CELEBRATING OUR PARTNERS

Next month, the Kagoshima Municipal Science Hall will celebrate its 30th Anniversary in Japan. Kagoshima has become one of IMAX's best partners over the last several years, housing an incredible IMAX Dome Theatre that fans travel far and wide to experience. The hall also boasts two rockets launch facilities that bring folks closer to space than anywhere else in the country. The celebration is sure to be a special occasion, and IMAX will join in support, submitting a video address to audiences and more (not to mention, it coincides with the release of "Asteroid Hunters" 🤩). Stay tuned!

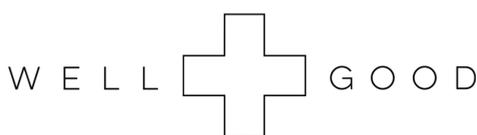

ICYMI!

If you didn't catch our latest Global Townhall you can listen in here!

"Akira", the classic cyberpunk dystopia (is that redundant?) fan-favorite is back in the news, with more U.S. showings popping up after a short run earlier this year. Always interesting to see the return of comic book franchise intellectual property, particularly for IMAX), and especially in terms of how those films may help get moviegoers back into theatres today.

Well+Good published an interesting piece recently about binary-centered language that we found quite educational. If you're interested in learning more, you should also check out The Trevor Project's 'Guide to Being an Ally to Transgender and Nonbinary Youth' here.

Thank you again for reading. As always, enjoy your Tuesday and the rest of your week!
